11. Nature of the proceedings and summary of complaint and defenses Syracuse Mountains Corporation (“Syracuse”) commenced a civil action against Petróleos de Venezuela, S.A. (“PDVSA”) for a money judgment for amounts allegedly owed by PDVSA pursuant to five note agreements issued by PDVSA. Discovery in the case is ongoing.

Syracuse alleges that PDVSA made initial payments due under the notes, but failed to make payments beginning in late 2017. Syracuse claims that it is entitled to a money judgment from PDVSA for the unpaid principal and interest on the notes.

PDVSA intends to establish that the sanctions that the U.S. Department of Treasury Office of Foreign Assets Control (“OFAC”) imposed on the Venezuelan oil industry beginning in 2017 made it impossible or objectively impracticable for PDVSA to perform its payment obligations under the notes because banking institutions involved in the transactions rejected or refused to transfer payments from PDVSA.

| 12. Evidence to be obtained | Documents described in Schedule A, attached. |

Specifically, PDVSA seeks evidence showing that Syracuse is not authorized to take action to enforce the notes and that, in any case, PDVSA attempted to make the requisite payments under the notes but was prevented from doing so due to OFAC sanctions. |
